

Awards Disclosures

1. White Oaks Earns Slot in Business Observer's Gulf Coast 500

The 2017 Gulf Coast 500 ranks the largest 500 companies from nine counties from Polk to Collier, by revenue, and includes a valuable listing of those companies' contact information.

In addition to the list, the Gulf Coast 500 also features strategies and stories of the region's largest companies, and bits of information you may not know about them.

2. White Oaks Wealth Earns 2017 Hedge Fund Award

Since 2010, Acquisition International Magazine's annual awards have been highlighting the amazing work done by those firms and individuals whose ceaseless dedication to innovation, customer care and the continued growth and improvement of their businesses has seen them forge ahead of their competitors and raise the bar for performance and results in their industry.

We pride ourselves - and rightly so - on the validity of our awards and winners, an approach that is reflected in the rigorous and tightly monitored nomination, judging and selection processes. Every one of our awards is given solely on merit, meaning that there are no commercial requirements, no awards guaranteed by payment and no barriers to entry. In other words, no matter how big or small your business and regardless of where you're based, the only factors that will determine your success are the work you do and the results you achieve.

Our Awards Supplements

Of course, winning an award is pointless unless you have the chance to show off your success to others in your industry. This is why we offer a number of packages, designed to give every successful winner as much exposure as possible and why, at the core of this offering, sit our range of dedicated award supplements. These online publications are produced by our in-house editorial and design team and feature interviews, profiles, articles and comment from each award's proud winners. Each supplement is then distributed to well over 108,000 people in our circulation, fellow nominees and nominating firms, guaranteeing that your latest success gets in front of the people who matter the most.

Methodology

As mentioned, each and every nomination is subject to a lengthy and in-depth assessment process, designed to enable us to separate the truly remarkable from their peers.

The process begins the second we open the ballot boxes and distribute the voting forms to our worldwide network of partners and industry experts and sees us combine the votes received – alongside submitted supporting evidence, our own in-house research and the in-depth knowledge and expertise of our network of corporate leaders and experts to arrive at our final winners list.

This comprehensive selection and judging process ensures that our awards are always a true representation of the market in question and that all of our winners are truly at the cutting edge of their respective industries.

In the Press

As you can imagine, our winners take great pride in being acknowledged by Acquisition International. For this reason, our awards regularly feature in news and press outlets across the globe. Below are just some of the many mentions our awards have received in the past few months:

- SunGard Wins Acquisition International's 2015 Hedge Fund Award For Innovation In Global Corporate Actions
- Stonegate Global Wins Second Award by Acquisition International for Most Cost Effective Fund Administrator -- Global
- Worksop tax firm wins international award
- Watson Wheatley Wins 2015 International Hedge Fund Award

3. White Oaks Named as Top 10 Best Financial Advisor in Minnesota

Step 1: Develop a Comprehensive List

Using publicly available sources, AdvisoryHQ identifies a wide range of financial advisors, registered investment managers, wealth managers, and financial planners that provide services in a designated area.

Step 2: Apply Initial Threshold Filters

After developing a comprehensive list of firms, our review team then applies the initial methodology filters to narrow down the list of identified firms.

Initial Filters:

- Fee structure (fee-only vs. fee-based vs. commission-based structures)
- Fiduciary duty
- Independence (a situation that minimizes conflict of interest issues)
- Scale of innovation

Fee Structure (Fee-Only vs. Fee-Based vs. Commission)

Based on what a lot of consumers are searching for, AdvisoryHQ's methodology logic is "fee-only" centric. However, there are times when the review team will identify and rank one or more advisory firms that have a fee-based/commission-based structure based on the reasons explained below.

Fee-Only:

Fee-only financial advisors, financial planners, and wealth managers do not accept commissions or third-party referral payments. Their only source of advisory payments comes from their clients.

A fee-only structure minimizes the inherent conflicts of interest that come with selling and recommending financial products. While a client's objectives, not the advisor's method of compensation, should drive the advisor's recommendations, this is not always the case.

Across the financial industry, a lot of firms and individuals that call themselves "financial advisors" are actually commission-based financial product salespeople. Their compensation is determined solely by the quantity of financial products they sell rather than the quality of their advice.

A TD Waterhouse survey showed that most consumers were unaware of the regulatory distinctions between fee-only vs. fee-based (fee + commissions) vs. commission structures.

The survey found that 88% of consumers would not seek advice from fee-based/commission-based investment firms if they knew the firms were not legally required (non-fiduciaries) to act in the investor's best interest in all aspects of the relationship.

For example, about 90% indicated they would not seek financial advice from a stockbroker if they realized the stockbroker was not legally required to disclose conflicts of interest prior to providing financial advice.

Eighty-five percent indicated they would not seek advice from a commission-based firm if they realized that such advisors provided fewer protections than Registered Investment Advisors (RIAs), which are required to act as fiduciaries.

Fiduciaries are legally required to act in their clients' best interest, 100% of the time.

As such, AdvisoryHQ's selection factors and logic have been designed toward identifying, selecting, and ranking the top fee-only advisory firms across the U.S. and the U.K.

Fee-Based and Fiduciaries:

Our methodology also favors fee-based advisory firms that are also fiduciaries. Many consumers confuse fee-based advisors with fee-only advisors, and that is unfortunate because there are some critical differences between these two types of compensation models. Fee-based advisors receive some of their compensation directly from their clients, but they are also free to accept commissions from the companies whose financial products they sell.

Oftentimes, the fact that the advisor earns commissions is not readily provided to the client or apparent in the client's statement.

Like the commission-based model, a fee-based compensation model creates potential conflicts of interest because the investment manager's income is affected by the number of transactions conducted and by which products are selected.

Our goal when presenting our rankings is to provide a wide range of top-rated advisors to a wide range of client types. In some cities we have observed fee-based advisory firms that provide an amazing level of service to clients and have fees that are sometimes less than those charged by fee-only advisory firms that operate in that same geographical location.

Here at AdvisoryHQ, our methodology is focused on identifying, ranking, and presenting the top-rated, fee-only wealth advisors and investment managers. We do acknowledge that there are good-intentioned wealth advisors who choose to work under different compensation structures; however, too often their clients are unaware of the conflicts of interest that exist in some of these models.

Our methodology sometimes favors fee-based advisory firms that are also fiduciaries because such advisors are required to fully disclose any conflicts of interest and are also required to always place their clients' interests ahead of their own.

For example, we rated Investors Advisory Group (IAG) as one of this year's top ranking best wealth management firms in Wisconsin.

IAG operates under a fee-based structure. But it is also a fiduciary, which is a common thread that connects the firm and the fiduciary duty under which they operate. Fiduciary duty requires them by law, in addition to their practice principles, to put their clients' interests ahead of their own.

The firm also provides customized services to each of its clients, and its advisors commit themselves to staying current with financial trends, products, and practices, which helps them to make responsible decisions about their clients' investments.

Here is a statement that encompasses the foundation upon which the firm is built:

"Doing things that are in the best interest of our clients is at the heart of how we provide objective investment advice. We don't make 'cookie cutter' recommendations. We truly believe in the importance of seeing things from each client's perspective and customizing a plan to help each client meet their long- and short-term goals."

Commission-Based Structure:

Although AdvisoryHQ's selection methodology favors fee-only (and fee-based + fiduciary) wealth managers and financial advisory firms, in extremely rare cases we might include one commission-based firm in the list of top-ranking advisors. Here is why...

Our goal is to identify and provide broad ranging lists of advisory firms who can meet the needs of different consumer types, including high and ultra high-net-worth investors. Ultra high-net-worth investors are those with investable assets of at least $30 million. High-net-worth investors are those with an excess of $1 million in investable assets.

Some ultra/high-net-worth individuals and families seek out some unique, "velvet-glove" services that may be provided best by a particular advisory firm in a particular city or state that is fee-based or commission-based.

Fiduciary Duty

AdvisoryHQ's methodology strongly favors financial advisors, planners, and wealth managers that assume fiduciary duties and responsibilities. As explained above, this means that they have a fiduciary responsibility to act in their clients' best interest.

Fiduciaries are required by law to disclose all fees, maintain an open architecture, and "sit on the same side of the table" as you.

With a fiduciary, products and services will not be pushed onto you just to line the advisor's pocket. When a fiduciary makes a recommendation, you can be sure that it's done with the aim of further growing your investments and improving your financial portrait.

As a fiduciary, your advisor's only thought when providing advice or selecting investment products for your portfolio is how the advice/investments will help you reach your financial objectives.

Independence (A Situation that Minimized Conflict of Interest Issue)

AdvisoryHQ's selection logic is designed to favor independent financial advisors and wealth management firms. These are firms that provide services and recommend financial products that are not based on any affiliation with a major bank or financial institution. An independent structure leads to a reduced conflict of interest situation.

Unlike an in-house advisor or broker, who is limited to the menu of products approved by his/her employer, independent financial advisors can help clients make informed and objective investment choices from a wide selection of financial products.

Scale of Innovation

The relationship with a financial advisor, planner, or wealth manager is normally a very long-term relationship. As such, it is essential to seek advisors who are constantly improving their services and business practices.

You will benefit from the most accurate and timely advice because such advisors invest in their team continually, including continual education that is far beyond minimum industry requirements. AdvisoryHQ's selection logic is designed to favor firms that emphasize innovation and consistent improvement as part of their overall policy, mission, goal, and strategy.

Step 3: Apply Integrated Selection Filters

After trimming down the initial list using AdvisoryHQ's initial methodology filters, AdvisoryHQ's review team then conducts a deep-dive review assessment of the remaining advisors to select the final list of top-ranking advisors, planners, and wealth managers.

When performing their deep-dive assessment and due diligence, the team applies the following selection filters.

Selection Criteria :Why Is This Important?

Resource Availability

An advisory firm's greatest strength is its dedicated team of advisors, RIAs, CFPs, wealth managers, financial planners, client service professionals, and other supporting staff members.

One of the key dimensions that AdvisoryHQ reviews as part of its final methodology selection logic is the number of "available" advisory professionals and supporting staff.

Firms with a broad listing of advisors, planners, asset managers, and other supporting staff will have the necessary bandwidth to provide the right level of support to a broad base of individuals, families, and institutions.

However, our biggest focus is the number of advisors relative to the number of clients. As an example, a firm with a small number of advisors can still rank high if it only caters to a select number of clients or if it provides niche services.

Experience Level

In addition to the number of available resources, AdvisoryHQ also considers the combined experience level of the advisory team, including years of experience, certification, and leading roles within their fields of expertise.

A team with a broad level of expertise and extensive years of experience will have the appropriate skillset to deal with a wide range of client financial issues.

Transparency

Our selection methodology favors advisory firms whose fees are completely transparent.

(Don't miss: Average Financial Advisor Fees—Wealth Managers, Planners, and Fee-Only Advisors)

Before beginning any work, your advisor should disclose their fees to you. This way, there are no surprises or hidden fees.

Customized Services

The level of flexibility in providing customized services is another factor used in our analytical logic.

AdvisoryHQ's selection logic favors firms that provide services that are tailored toward their clients' unique situations.

-Quality of Advisor's Website

Consumers like to review an advisor's website in detail before contacting that advisor.

As such, AdvisoryHQ considers the ease of use, graphical design, and functionality of an advisor's website as part of our methodology.

-Open Door Policy

AdvisoryHQ also favors firms that emphasize an open door policy. An open door policy encourages you to ask questions, get to know their staff, and feel at home in their office.

Such firms will actively encourage you to contact them throughout the year before you make major financial decisions or whenever you have financial questions.

-Audience

Advisors cater to various audience types. Some advisors mainly focus on providing services to individual investors, while others cater solely or mainly to institutional clients.

Our focus is to identify and rank those advisors and wealth managers who cater to and work with individuals and families.

Step 4: Generate the Final List

Based on the results of our assessment, AdvisoryHQ then selects the individuals and entities that make it into our various lists of top financial advisors, planners, and asset managers.

Scale of AdvisoryHQ's Methodology Selection Factors

Please note that there are hundreds, if not thousands of possible factors, filters, and selection criteria that can be applied to any ranking and rating selection across any industry.

It is nearly impossible for any ranking or review company to accommodate all possible selection filters when developing a selection methodology.

The selection filters outlined above are the only selection filters that we currently accommodate.

Perform Additional Due Diligence Before Using an Advisory or Wealth Management Firm

Before hiring an investment manager or financial advisor, it is strongly recommended that consumers perform additional due diligence. Such due diligence may include performing background checks. Consumers can use BrokerCheck, an online tool that enables consumer to scrutinize a potential financial adviser.

t is free to use and managed by the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA). FINRA oversees the people and firms that sell stocks, bonds, mutual funds and other securities. Simply type in your current or prospective broker's name to see employment history, certifications, and licenses—as well as regulatory actions, violations or complaints you might want to know about. You also can get information about your broker's firm. There's no reason not to check.

Detailed due diligence information on wealth managers and RIAs that are registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and not with FINRA can be found here: Investment Adviser Public Disclosure (IAPD).

The IAPD Program provides information about both SEC and state-registered investment adviser firms. The SEC typically regulates investment advisers that manage more than $100 million in assets. Advisors, wealth managers, and investment managers that do not meet this threshold generally are regulated by the states. You can also visit the link below to use the CFP Board's verification function to verify an individual's certification status. The search results will identify individuals who currently hold CFP® certification as well as individuals who are not currently certified but who held CFP® certification at one time.

CFP BOARD: VERIFY AN INDIVIDUAL'S CFP® CERTIFICATION AND BACKGROUND

Searching using the CFP Board's verification function should also turn up any securities or insurance-related infractions that were committed by the advisor as well as any violations of the CFP rules or code of ethics, which holds designees to a higher standard of conduct than FINRA or the SEC.

For additional due diligence, consumers can also call their state insurance commissioner to request disciplinary histories (if any) of insurance licensees committed by licensed personnel.

5. CNBC Top Fee Only Wealth Management List

The CNBC Digital editorial team, along with Meridian-IQ, created the following ranking methodology for its Top 100 Fee-Only Wealth Management Firms rankings. Scores for each measure listed below were weighted according to a proprietary formula to arrive at a final total rank:

- Assets under management
- having staff with professional designations such as a CFP or CFA
- working with third-party professionals such as attorneys or CPAs
- average account size
- client segmentation
- growth of assets
- years in business
- number of advisory clients
- providing advice on insurance solutions

Firms with greater AUM totals were given a higher ranking in the case of numerical ties of the above formula. The Meridian/AdviceIQ team then applied the formula to the Meridian-IQ database of all RIAs to create the list. The final step to create the Top 100 Fee-Only Wealth Management Firms list for CNBC.com was to apply the AdviceIQ Regulatory Compliance Review (RCR) process to the master list and eliminate any firm that failed the RCR process. The RCR process is a due-diligence process whereby each advisory firm was compared to the RCR database of all regulatory actions from all four primary regulators: SEC, FINRA, state regulators and state insurance commissioners. In order to pass the RCR process, an advisory firm cannot have any complaints, actions or disclosures from any of the above regulators.

6. NABCAP Premier Advisors

Consideration for inclusion in the NABCAP Premier Advisor list is based on standards set forth by NABCAP. Additionally, the Financial Advisors who have made the list are required to certify that their license(s) are in good standing. The inclusion of a Financial Advisor on the NABCAP Premier Advisor list should not be construed as an endorsement of the Financial Advisor by NABCAP. The overall evaluation score of a Financial Advisor may not be representative of all clients' experience. Past performance does not guarantee future success.

7. Medical Economics: 150 best financial advisors for doctors

This article is designed to help you find just such a person. We've done the hard work of searching the country for the best financial advisers for doctors. Our editors have spent the better part of six months gathering names of potential candidates. In addition to mailing questionnaires to the advisers who made our previous list (which was published in 2004), we contacted advisers recommended to us by financial planning professional societies, as well as those who received praise from readers like you, whom we solicited with an open call for nominations earlier this year.

Over the summer, our mailboxes were filled with hundreds of completed questionnaires, detailing advisers' credentials, education, areas of expertise, total amount of assets under management, percentage of physician clients, noteworthy professional achievements, and affiliations with medical organizations. Some advisers, we found, serve on hospital boards; others have a spouse or child who's a doctor. A few of them are physicians, who left the day-to-day practice of medicine to maintain their clients' financial health.

To whittle down our list of candidates, we gave preference to those who came recommended to us by your colleagues and those who limit the percentage of compensation they earn from commissions. Commissions, we feel, can predispose an adviser to steer you toward a financial product that may be better for him (in terms of income) than it is for you. That's certainly not always the case, of course, but the odds that you'll receive unbiased advice are greater if you use a "fee-only" planner, one who makes no money from commissions.

As was the case when we published our list two years ago, we received multiple nominations from the same firm or brokerage. However, to give us the broadest geographic reach—we wanted at least one adviser in each state—we made the tough decision to limit our selections to one adviser per firm, even though many firms nominated several qualified partners. By the way, don't hesitate to call an adviser just because his place of business isn't near you; most advisers are willing to travel considerable distances to meet with their clients.

Last, but not least, we ran each adviser's name through the NASD and SEC databases, to be sure he or she hadn't been found guilty of any wrongdoing. That's comforting to you, of course, but it doesn't preclude the possibility that a state securities office may have a beef with an adviser; we didn't drill down that far.

Almost every adviser we chose has some sort of specialized financial planning credentials in addition to an undergraduate degree and, in some cases, an advanced degree (MBAs, for instance, are common to our list). Three credentials that you'll see often on the list are related to investing and comprehensive planning: Certified Financial Planner (CFP), Chartered Financial Consultant (ChFC), and Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA). A couple of others—Certified Public Accountant (CPA) and Chartered Life Underwriter (CLU)—indicate people who can take care of your tax and insurance needs as well as your investment portfolio. One other credential you'll see is CPA/PFS, which is an accountant who specializes in personal financial planning. To maintain these credentials and keep their knowledge current, these professionals may be required to take continuing education. There's comfort in that, too.

The majority of the advisers on our exclusive list will manage your money for you; others will create an investment plan and make recommendations, but leave the execution to you. As you'll see, most of the folks on our list require a minimum amount of investment assets before they'll accept you as a client. Those minimums can run as high as $1 million, but many advisers are open to smaller amounts if you're serious about investing and committed to saving regularly. We gave preference, however, to advisers with small minimums or none at all. In any case, you should always ask what fees are involved to manage your assets; even advisers that require no minimums may charge annual retainers of many thousands of dollars a year.

Finally, always meet the adviser in person before you agree to invest. It's important for both parties to determine if your personalities mesh and whether you'll be able to communicate well with one another. Does the adviser listen closely to your questions, and to your spouse's? Does he or she have other physician-clients with situations similar to yours? You can find basic information about the adviser, his team, his investment philosophy, and his services from his website—even most advisers in small firms have a website. For instance, you may want only a detailed financial plan, for which you pay a flat rate or an hourly fee, before agreeing to entrust the adviser with a portion or all of your assets.
